Allowable Subject Matter

1. Claims 5-22 contain allowable subject matter over the prior art of record.
2. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:

The claimed invention is directed to a recording apparatus for recording on a recording medium a coded audio video stream. The independent claim 5 identifies the feature "for each of said packs, the packing unit performs the packing such that a position in the audio video stream, where the attribute changes, is positioned at a head of the pack". Moreover, the independent claim 10 identifies the feature of "an attribute detector operable to detect a video resolution or an aspect ratio of the video signal as an attribute relating to the video signal on the basis of the audio video stream, and operable to output attribute data indicating the video resolution or the aspect ratio; wherein when the attribute changes, said video object composer divides the audio video stream, on the basis of the attribute data, such that a portion of the audio video stream before the attribute change point and a portion of the audio video stream after the attribute change point are output as different video object data". And moreover, the independent claim 15 identifies the feature of "a video attribute detector operable to detect a video resolution or an aspect ratio of the video signal as a video attribute of the video signal on the basis of the video signal, and operable to output video attribute data indicating the video attribute wherein the video encoder forms the frame group such that a specific frame, whose video attribute is different from that of a frame positioned just before it, is stored as a head frame in the frame group". The closest prior art, Nagasawa discloses a conventional audio video recording/reproducing apparatus, either singularly or in combination fails to anticipate or render the above underlined limitations obvious.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
